

La Campagne Mondiale pour les Microbicides

La Campagne Mondiale pour les Microbicides est un vaste effort international visant à créer un réseau de soutien parmi les décideurs, les meneurs d'opinions et le public en faveur d'investissements financiers accrus dans la recherche sur les microbicides et autres méthodes de prévention contrôlables par l'utilisateur. Par un travail de plaidoyer, d'analyse de politiques et de recherches en sciences sociales, la Campagne s'efforce d'accélérer le développement de produits, à en faciliter l'accès et l'usage et à protéger les besoins et les intérêts des utilisateurs, particulièrement ceux des femmes.

Spécifiquement, les objectifs de la Campagne sont de:

- Mobiliser durablement une volonté politique : contribuer à construire une demande venant du public et obtenir le soutien des gouvernements afin de, sans retard, développer, mettre en place et utiliser les nouvelles technologies de prévention du VIH, en particulier pour les femmes ;
- Promouvoir une plus forte implication de la société civile : renforcer les capacités et élargir le champ d'opportunités d'un engagement productif des militants et des communautés dans la recherche fondamentale et clinique ; et
- Permettre la conduite d'essais : identifier les défis éthiques et les obstacles politiques qui se posent au démarrage sans retard des essais dans le champ de la prévention du VIH, et œuvrer en vue de discussions ouvertes, informées et transversales devant conduire à l'obtention du consensus nécessaire pour relever ces défis et obstacles.

La Campagne Mondiale opère avec une petite équipe d'employés et finance des organisations partenaires, afin que celles-ci puissent directement faire avancer les objectifs de la Campagne. Le Secrétariat de la Campagne est basé au sein de l'organisation « Program for Appropriate Technology and Health » (PATH), une organisation internationale spécialisée dans la santé des femmes et des enfants.
